CLUB NOTES

A MIXED START. The opening two First Division fixtures have seen our team take two points from the four at stake, and though the side came from behind to win at Bramley, there is without doubt need for improvement if we are to progress in this important season. The home defeat by Widnes—a team which may well gain prominence this term—was a clear illustration of effective combined and sustained effort. The Naughton Park men obviously came with a determined intention to play good, hard rugby for the whole eighty minutes and in their correct execution of the fundamentals, including strong tackling and sound backing up, they became deserved winners.

Today we receive another attractive side from over the border, and in the expectation of seeing football in keeping with some of the fine Leeds-Oldham clashes in previous years, we extend a warm welcome to all from the Watersheddings once more. Coached by colourful Welsh ex-International forward Bryn Day, Oldham took a heavy 44—15 fall at Workington two weeks ago, but came back last Saturday with a close home victory over Huddersfield.

CONGRATULATIONS go to Ken Thornett, Lewis Jones, Alan Rees and Ron Cowan on their selection for the Eastern Zone XIII to play in France in twelve days' time. It is particularly pleasing to see our skipper back among the honours, for Lewis has turned in some of his finest games ever recently, and his recognition has been well-earned. All four of our players have brought credit to the club and to themselves. We wish them success.

CURTAIN RAISER. To-day's junior game before the big match is between the Leeds and Doncaster Senior Schoolboys teams.

INTERMEDIATES. Young players not attached to any club are still required by our Under-19's side. Boys interested in joining are invited to call at the Club on any Monday or Wednesday at 7.0 p.m.

YORKSHIRE CUP FINAL. 7/6d. Main Stand seating tickets for next Saturday's match here between Hull K.R. and Hunslet, are on sale at the Pools Office, in the Pavilion Car Park, until 5.0 p.m. today.

MEMORIES STIRRED BY TODAY'S MEETING

LEEDS 12pts.—OLDHAM 7pts.—R.L. Cup 2nd Round—March 3rd, 1956

Both teams had earned a reputation for throwing the ball about, but in the first half they seemed more intent on avoiding defeat than on taking positive steps towards winning, for Leeds never crossed the Oldham '25' and Cracknell and Eddy, Oldham's free-scoring wingers, received no more than one pass between them.

In the second half Stevenson, somewhat subdued by heavy marking, continued to send out a stream of adroit passes, but Oldham eventually took a 7—2 lead when Davies ran through a gap to score. Leeds equalised when Robinson accepted an inside pass after a McLellan breakaway and ran ten yards to the line.

The game seemed drawn, when two minutes from time Hopper sent winger Scholes dashing down his touchline. Ganley, Davies and Eddy went in to tackle, but the harassed winger somehow managed to lob the ball inside before going down under all three tacklers, and to the unbridled enthusiasm of the 30,000 crowd, the unmarked McLellan took his pass to score a thrilling last-minute try. Dunn, who had earlier kicked two goals, landed the conversion from the touch-line.

RECORDS ARE NOT QUITE ENOUGH

Year by year we find newspapers printing lists of goals and tries scorers, and the information contained in the tables is valuable as far as records are concerned, keeping the code's followers interested in the week-by-week changes (writes Cyril Briggs).

This season the scoring lists take on extra significance and therefore I hope that the charts will be split into two, showing names and scoring feats in each of the two divisions. We all know that Rugby, like most other games, is a team effort. At times however, the accomplishments of certain players are apt to be placed as individual feats instead of giving due recognition to the scorers' colleagues.

What we do not always take into consideration is the fact that over the years men who have set up new records, either for the League or for their clubs, have no tangible reward. There may have been some congratulatory note in the official programme or similar publication, but no souvenir.

One player I have in mind is still awaiting a memento which was promised him some years ago for setting up amazing figures. The player will probably like to have that present in a few years' time when his name has passed into the dim deeds of the past.

There are certain clubs who give money or other gifts to record-breaking players, but the same idea is not recognised elsewhere. The Rugby League, becoming a little tired of "Club Player of the Year" and other titles, especially outside the game, clamped down on these awards and decided that official recognition should be sought before such awards are contemplated.

I am not against the official ruling, but I do think that when a player has topped the League list for even one year, then he should have something to show for that accomplishment. Take the Lance Todd Trophy for instance. I am now referring to the trophy which was started before the Salford Red Devils entered the field with their award.

The original idea came from Mr. Harry Sunderland, the Australian of many parts and interests. Harry felt that the name of Lance Todd should be perpetuated; he also thought that there should be some recognition for a player who was adjudged to have been outstanding more than the other twenty-five at Wembley in performance as well as sportsmanship.

So he gained the support of two great Rugby League stalwarts, Mr. Bob Anderton the Warrington director, who has been manager of two Australian Tour teams, and Mr. John Bapty, the Sports Editor of "The Yorkshire Evening Post," who has been reporting the game for many years. The three gentlemen are the trustees for the fund. There is no actual trophy. The player chosen by the votes of the viewing writers at Wembley gets a sum of money to purchase a present of his own liking.

The decision of these three wise men of Rugby League was formulated after it had been found that certain mementoes such as medals were no longer a personal adornment with the decline in popularity of the watch chain. So the player who won the Lance Todd trophy decided on a statuette, a cigarette case or lighter or a wallet. It was a novel idea, and is now part and parcel of every Wembley Cup Final.

After one Wembley triumph by Halifax a local company presented the club with a miniature of the R.L. Challenge Cup. If there is to be no annual award for the men who top the four lists—two in each division—why not have a cup for annual competition and record the name on a plinth? I am sure the idea would be welcomed by the players as much as the current scoring competitions being promoted by a well known brewery.
